SUMMARY – The May 2012 edition of Kovels on Antiques and Collectibles newsletter is now available in print and online. Featured are picture and price auction reports on Baseball Collectibles, Vintage Hooked Rugs and American Studio Pottery.

CLEVELAND – May 1, 2012 – The May 2012 Kovels on Antiques and Collectibles newsletter is now available in print and online.

Kovels' May newsletter helps you swing into baseball season with its report on some collectibles offered at auction. An autographed Honus Wagner ball sold for over $2,400, a Jackie Robinson doll was $763 and a Mickey Mantle card went for $305. Kovels' May issue takes baby boomers back to "Howdy Doody time" with pictures and prices of memorabilia related to the red-headed marionette. A wooden Howdy Doody figure went for $1,800. And you'll be hooked on rugs after reading Kovels' auction report on homey hooked rugs. Most of the rugs picture animals, flowers and geometric designs but the top seller featuring sun and moon faces went for a hefty $11,258!

In Kovels on Antiques and Collectibles May newsletter you can also find examples of American-made studio pottery, antique chests of drawers, and Bing & Grøndahl Christmas plates. Terry Kovel shares her favorites from a New York City folk art show. And regular monthly features—the Dictionary of Marks, featuring U.S. Studio potters' marks, the popular illustrated Collector's Gallery with answers to readers' questions, and the Buyer's Price Guide of recent prices—are also included.

With its mixture of expert advice and reports on what's hot in the market, Kovels' newsletter has something to offer for both beginning and experienced collectors.
